Career Objective

One of the things I have found myself needing over and over again as I design websites is "dummy text" or "filler text", that looks like real content, that I can use to fill up a page so it gives the client the feel of a finished page, text and all.

Education

Course	Institution	Place	Year	Parcentage
BE- Computer Science	SNS College of Technology, Coimbatore	Coimbatore	2014	69
HSC	Govt.Hr.Sec. HSC School, Bandahalli	Dharmapuri	2010	78
SSLC	Govt.Hr.Sec. HSC School, Bandahalli	Dharmapuri	2008	88

Technical Skills

- Lorem ipsum dolor sit amet
- consectetuer adipiscing elit
- sed diam nonummy nibh euismod

Inplant Training

You know the box you always have to scroll thru to read the terms and conditions on a website, before you can enter or maybe buy something? It's always the LAST thing the client's legal people get around to writing and so you DEFINITELY need dummy text for that. My friend Syrus gave me this the other day and it really gave me a good laugh. Here's an example

Laravel SendGrid Driver
Maybe we're all a bit past it by now, but if you've still got the whole Matrix thing happening for you... here is some "crap binary" for ya. It's actually really useful for creating backgrounds in Photoshop or in really small text as a decorative feature on your webpage. Here's what it looks like

Acadamic Projects

Apartment Management System
don't know what else to call this. It's English words but it's meaningless. Some people (myself included) prefer this to Lorem Ipsum because it's sort of more obvious that you're filling up a space with "crap text". I have had people ask me what the Lorem Ipsum was all about, but this Gibberish Text seems to have worked flawlessly so far - but you just can't tell how dumb the next person is going to be! Here's an example

Achievements

- University boffins who worked out how to pump loads of text into a computer and get it to spit it back out at ya sounding real!
- I don't know how or why they did it but it makes GREAT filler text! Here's an example

Areas of Interest

- Bataille's analysis of predialectic objectivism holds that culture
- A number of constructions concerning capitalist
- Culture is used in the service of archaic, sexist perceptions of art.
